CASE STUDY

Oxford University

Oxford, Oxfordshire, United Kingdom

The resurfacing of four outdoor tennis courts was part of a 60 million pound project to redevelop the Oxford Iffley road sports centre site. The university wanted to upgrade the existing tarmacadam courts they offer on the site after extensive research they chose CONICA's Pro Clay system.

The Iffley road complex first entered the history books in 1954, when Sir Roger Bannister broke the four-minute mile record running a race on a track located on the site.
